Petrol, diesel prices today: The petrol and diesel prices have been kept unchanged today after an eight paise cut yesterday. The fuel prices have not risen since May 29 when they touched a fresh lifetime high. The petrol and diesel price reduction began with just paise and reached up to 45 paise under daily fuel price revision, which kick-started a year ago. So far, petrol prices have been cut by Rs 2.08 a litre and Rs 2.05 a litre in Delhi and Mumbai respectively. Diesel prices, similarly, have been cut by Rs 1.46 a litre and Rs 1.115 a litre in Delhi and Mumbai in 18 days.

Low international crude oil prices are understood to be leading to cut in fuel prices. Late last month, the Narendra Modi government came under fire when the fuel prices kept touching fresh highs each day. The government then assured that were looking for both 'long-term' and 'short-term' solutions to cushion the people against rising fuel prices. BJP ministers Devendra Fadnavis and Nitin Gadkari and Oil minister Dharmendra Pradhan said bringing petrol and diesel under the ambit of Goods and Services Tax (GST) would help.
